Shoe fanatics from around Lebanon, some started out as amateurs, others are carrying on a family business. All with brilliant inspirational designs that brighten the design world in Lebanon.

“Parkour is all about a simultaneous movement of body and mind; that's the beauty of it.”

THE GRAVITY OF SHOES

An article about parkour in Lebanon, featuring an interview and photoshoot with Michel Malouf, a parkour artist.

SAWAN SISTERS

Maher and Karine Sawan are two sisters that come from a very artistic family. Maher and Karine decided to make their own shoes after attending a shoe workshop in London.

When we first met Maher and Karine, they were in London, England, attending a shoe workshop. They were both very artistic and creative, and they were both very interested in shoes. They had both been working in the fashion industry for a while, and they had both been working on their own shoe designs for a while. PLANT A SHOE

In our exploration of shoes, we discovered an interesting phenomenon called shoefiti, this involves many variations in which people use shoes as medium of graffiti, mostly involving hanging shoes off cables, but also off trees, which is known as shoe treefit. We were mesmerized by this curious "art", which is also called "shoefiti", or "shoe hanging".

VAMP IT UP

As we were walking on the streets in search for interesting shoes, we couldn't but be amazed by the amount of original shoes we found. We decided to Vamp up these shoes into awesome ones. Here is what we think would be a good idea.
